Water and Power Community Credit Union Provides Disaster Support through CUAid.coop

----LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA – Water and Power Community Credit Union is dedicated to the credit union philosophy of “People helping People.” We are donating $1,000 to provide disaster relief for Hurricane Harvey victims.

Activated by the National Credit Union Foundation (NCUF), the online disaster relief system, CUAid.coop, is helping raise money for those affected by Hurricane Harvey. All donations through CUAid.coop are for disaster relief only and not for administration expenses.

“Helping people in their time of need is what the credit union and its members are all about,” said Barry Roach, President/CEO of Water and Power Community Credit Union. “Through NCUF and CUAid.coop, we are grateful that we can provide direct, monetary support to the credit union family in the worst of times,” Roach added.

Since 2005, The NCUF and CUAid.coop has raised over $5 million for disaster relief efforts. Funds have assisted those affected from Hurricane Katrina, Superstorm Sandy, California/Colorado wildfires, and other disasters throughout the United States.

Donations can be made at www.CUAid.coop.
